Making The Most of your Insurance 365 Days a Year

Health Insurance Matters

If you are healthy it is difficult to foresee potential illness or injury, and even more difficult to predict the costs of future health problems. But it’s important to remember that health insurance—unlike car or home insurance—does not just help you to pay for an unexpected disaster. Health plans provide vital benefits intended to help you maintain good health and enjoy life.

Health insurance is ultimately a contract between you and a health insurer to pay some or all of your healthcare costs in exchange for a monthly premium payment. The kind of coverage you have—that is, the amount your insurance company is willing to pay for certain healthcare expenses—will vary depending on the insurance policy you’ve selected.

With a health insurance policy, you are not penalized for using your coverage throughout the year—and are actually encouraged to seek regular checkups and preventive care during the year.

Unlike other types of insurance, your rates are not determined by annual usage and claims cannot affect future benefits.

Keep your coverage current by paying your premiums on time. If you allow your coverage to lapse, your medical costs will not be covered.

What are Specialty Pharmacies?

If you have a chronic, rare or long-term condition that requires medication, you may be required to have certain prescriptions filled by a specific pharmacy network or a mail-order prescription program. Medications that require special storage or handling, are given by injection or infusion, need to be taken on a strict schedule, or require close monitoring for side effects are typically filled by specialty pharmacies. Specialty medicines cost more than more common medicines and often require prior authorization from the insurance company. All prescriptions require you to pay the total amount owed prior to receiving the medication. If you are required to use a specialty pharmacy, a billing coordinator will work with you and your providers to streamline the process.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q What do I do if I can’t pay for my medications?

A If you are struggling to afford your medication costs, programs may be available to help you:

Discount Cards: If the prescription you are filling is a brand-name medication, ask the pharmacist if there is a manufacturer’s coupon you can use. Lots of times, drug manufacturers offer discount or coupon cards which can lower the co-pay for your medication to a much more affordable rate.

Free Drug Programs: If your medication is denied or off-formulary you are responsible for the entire cost. Many manufacturers offer free drug programs or low-cost options specifically for those without coverage which use income for eligibility.

Co-Pay Assistance Organizations: These programs provide direct financial support to uninsured patients, even if you have government-sponsored insurance like Medicare, Medicaid, or Tricare. If approved (based on medical and financial qualifications), the program can help with your out-of-pocket costs related to medication expenses.

Q What if I have more than one health benefit plan?

A You may have coverage from more than one health insurance plan. For example, spouses may have coverage for themselves and each other under their workplace plans. Older employees who are still working may have both Medicare and employer-sponsored coverage. Retired employees may have both retiree insurance through their most recent employer and Medicare coverage.

If you have more than one active policy, every claim filed will undergo a review process to determine which health insurance company should be the primary or secondary payer. Once the primary plan pays its portion of the allowable charges on covered services the remaining balance is submitted to the secondary payer for consideration under their benefit plan.

Reading Your Insurance Card

Take your insurance identification card with you whenever you seek care. This ID card will come in the mail or will be available electronically after you enroll in a health benefit plan.

1 The health policy member number (this number is unique to your policy) will be referenced on all correspondence.

2 Brief out-of-pocket cost breakdown, which may include the required co-payments for office visits, specialty, urgent or emergency care and prescriptions. This information does not take into consideration your deductible.

3 Telephone numbers and addresses to use when you have questions, need help filing claims or seek prior authorization.

4 Effective date of coverage.
Understanding Your Explanation of Benefits (EOB)

Every time you receive care from a provider or file a claim for services received, your insurer will prepare you an “Explanation of Benefits.” This form is not a bill. It explains what medical treatments and/or services were provided and the amount the insurance company will pay towards any covered charge. It is important to take note of the following information on your EOB:

Save Money Through Prior Authorizations

Your health plan may require you or your medical provider to get a prior authorization or precertification before you receive certain services. Services that often require prior authorization include routine or planned hospital admissions, home health or infusion therapy and some outpatient services. If you don’t get prior authorization, the service or medication may cost you more or may not be covered at all. If you are in doubt about whether a service or treatment is covered, call the customer service number listed on your health insurance card.

In the end, it is your responsibility as the policy holder to know what your policy requires.

Always submit preauthorization paperwork!

Starting the Conversation on Billing Issues

The first step to dealing with problems is to keep your medical and financial paperwork organized. That way, if you experience problems, you’ll be able to provide a complete description of the problem you’re facing. Always keep written notes with the date, name, title, and phone number of the person you spoke with. Remember your goal is to get them to help you. Stay calm; be polite and patient, but also persistent. If you don’t understand, ask for clarification and continue until you fully understand.

Keep all of your health information and documents in one place.
Know Your Plan, Save Your Wallet

Reading and understanding your insurance plan’s key words and phrases will help you uncover ways to control costs.

• Covered Benefits A comprehensive medical policy contains several areas of coverage; however, no plan will cover every available health service or product. Before you seek care, become familiar with the covered services identified in the plan language. You may be surprised to find some services you need are not covered or are only covered with approved pre-authorization.

• Non-Covered Benefits & Exclusions It’s important to read and become familiar with the section of your health policy that lists the limitations and exclusions. Your insurance company will not pay for services found in this section. Typical limitations or exclusions may include eye exams and contacts, dental care, fertility treatment, cosmetic surgery and alternative or complementary care (such as massage therapy). Some plans will limit coverage for treatments the insurer considers unproven. This can include supplies, procedures, therapies or devices considered experimental or investigational.

• Pharmacy Benefits In order to fill a prescription drug, most insurers require a co-pay (a fixed cost) or co-insurance (a percentage of the cost) paid beforehand. These costs can vary greatly depending on which tier level the medication is classified on within the plan drug formulary. The higher the tier level (tier levels usually range from 1 to 5), the higher the out-of-pocket cost associated with that medication. You may also have to meet a pharmaceutical deductible amount before your insurance begins paying its share toward the cost of your medications. Generics are usually on lower tiers and can save you money, if available.

If you need a medication that is not included on the formulary, you can request that your doctor contact the health plan to explain the medical need for you to take a specific medication. If your request is denied, you have the right to appeal your health plan’s decision.

Keep in mind that it’s OK to ask about costs when you’re considering treatment options. Some treatments may be less costly and just as effective as others.
Qualifying health insurance guarantees you a minimum amount of healthcare coverage for each type of medical service you may encounter, including doctor visits, prescription drugs, hospital stays, chronic medical care and/or surgery. When seeking care, be aware of the benefits available through your health plan. If you chose a short-term health plan, you may not have access to all the services you might expect from a traditional, comprehensive plan, and may be limited in the types of care and providers you can access.

Certain key elements appear in all qualifying healthcare plans:

Primary Care
Includes basic healthcare services, usually delivered by physicians and trained medical personnel who practice family medicine, pediatrics or internal medicine. A primary care physician is your main healthcare provider and usually your first point of contact. This physician will deliver preventive services and may refer you to specialists.

Specialty Care
Extends beyond primary care to medical fields such as surgery, cardiology or oncology. Specialists are doctors who have trained in specific medical or treatment areas to gain a detailed level of expertise.

Urgent Care
Same-day clinics that can handle a variety of injuries and conditions that require care but are not serious enough to require an emergency room. They offer a wide range of services for common illnesses that are not considered a true emergency, including severe sore throats, minor sprains, and cuts requiring stitches.

Emergency Care
Is required for any medical condition that poses an immediate danger to a person's life or health. Head injuries, weakness, paralysis or persistent chest pain are true emergencies and are among those conditions that require emergency care.

Preventive Care
Testing, screenings and immunizations, well-baby care, children's vision exams, periodic prostate exams, pap smears and mammograms are all examples of commonly covered preventive care services. The ACA requires that most insurance plans provide preventive services without deductibles, co-payments, or co-insurance payments from you, allowing you to participate in these services without cost.

How is My Plan Structured?

Whether you are enrolled in a group or individual plan, understanding the way your plan works can help you use your benefits.

Exclusive Provider Organization (EPO) and Point of Service (POS) plans provide coverage to members similarly through a predefined network of healthcare providers but are generally more flexible than HMOs. For example, you are not required to have a referral to see a network specialist. However, if you choose to go out of network for services, you are responsible for paying the difference between what the plan has determined to be their negotiated rate and what the provider charges.

Preferred Provider Organizations (PPO) plans provide medical services in a specific geographic area, based on contracted rates with the providers being paid a predetermined amount. HMOs require that you select a primary care physician (PCP) who is responsible for managing your healthcare. If you need a diagnostic service or care from a specialist, your PCP must provide you with a referral to a network provider. If you choose to go to a doctor outside of your HMO's network for scheduled care, you will pay all of the cost.

High Deductible Health Plans (HDHP) have lower premiums and a higher yearly deductible than a traditional health plan. These plans appeal to healthy people who cannot or don't want to pay large monthly premiums for benefits. Preventive care is covered at no cost, but other services must be paid by the insured until the deductible is met before the insurance company contributes.

One advantage of a HDHP is the ability to contribute a certain amount of pre-tax dollars to a Health Savings Account (HSA) in your name. Most people deposit the savings from lower monthly premiums into their HSA. These funds can be used to cover the cost of medical care until the deductible is met and insurance begins to pay.

Government-sponsored plans like Medicare, Medicaid or military benefits operate under a combination of plan designs. Medicare Advantage plans are structured as HMOs or PPOs, whereas Traditional Medicare allows you to go to any provider that accepts Medicare. Generally, Medicaid functions as an HMO plan and benefits vary by state.

Treatment for specific complaints are not covered under the preventive care benefit, even if addressed during an otherwise preventive appointment.
A Trend in Treatment: Personalized Medicine

Genetic testing and personalized medicine are rapidly evolving as the future of medical treatment. Genetic testing not only helps identify an individual’s risk for developing a certain disease or condition, but it can also provide information on how best to treat a condition. In addition to cancer, personalized medicine is driving the development of new treatments for complex diseases such as diabetes, heart disease, hepatitis C and Alzheimer’s disease, which are thought to be caused by a combination of genetic and other factors.

While we are still learning about the benefits, personalized medicine allows doctors to prescribe targeted treatment or drugs based on your specific genetic makeup. For example, many unique tumor biomarkers are being studied through clinical trials determining whether a patient’s cancer has the characteristics to respond to a specific treatment. This has been shown to provide better health outcomes, save the patient from many unnecessary and unpleasant side effects, and avoid additional costs.

Talk to your insurance company about which genetic tests and treatment options are covered in your plan.

Health Insurance Money Saving Tips

1. Choose In-Network Providers – Know where to go for care. Use the emergency department for a life-threatening situation but use your in-network providers for all other health-related issues.

2. Call Your Insurance Company with Questions – Read Your EOB, ask questions and take notes. Pay attention to codes you don’t understand and ask for definitions. Be sure to compare your EOB to your bill and double-check the dates of service to make sure the amounts match and previous payments are documented.

3. Take Advantage of Preventive Services – Most plans must cover certain preventive services without requiring payment from you. This is true even if you have not yet met your deductible, as long as you see a network provider for services.

4. Practice Ways to Improve Health and Lower Costs – Good advice tells us all to eat better, exercise more, limit alcohol intake and quit smoking. In addition to these health basics, get immunizations and screenings when recommended, and don’t put off seeing a doctor when you need one.

5. Be Proactive if You are Unable to Afford Your Care – Stressing about how to pay for healthcare costs can make a chronic condition worse, or cause you to delay seeking care. If you are feeling overwhelmed, inquire about payment plans or charity care programs. Community resources can range from help with practical expenses and medical supplies to co-payment and premium assistance, counseling services and legal help. If you ask for help, many providers will discuss a payment plan or offer solutions that may help you pay for your care.

6. Choose Generic Medication When Possible – The U.S. Food and Drug Administration requires that generic drugs be as safe and effective as brand-name drugs. They have the same dosage, intended use, effects, risks, safety and strength as the original drug. The main difference is generic drug manufacturers have fewer costs associated with developing and marketing. The cost savings are passed on to you when you use the generic instead of the name brand.

Sometimes even with insurance, you need additional healthcare or financial support. The National Financial Resource Directory can help you identify nonprofit and community organizations that work to help patients overcome challenges surrounding healthcare access and affordability.
